major business opportunity with the reputation as the largest importer of defence equipment in the world. "That may be music to the ears of some of you here but this is one area where we would not like to be number one," Modi said at the biennial event, being attended by more than 250 Indian companies and 300 foreign firms. Ruing that India spends "tens of billions of dollars on acquisitions from abroad", Modi said government's focus is to reduce imports and develop domestic defence industry with a sense of mission which "is at the heart of our Make in India programme". The Prime Minister expressed confidence that India will emerge as a major global centre for defence industry. Modi said a strong defence industry would not only make the country more secure but also make it more prosperous. "We must ensure that our tax system does not discriminate against domestic manufacture in comparison to imports," he said at Asia's premier air show at the IAF Yelahanka air base on the city outskirts. Modi pointed out that in India, the defence industry in the government sector that imports will always be there. "In turn, they can use India as part of their global supply chain," he said. Modi underlined that defence budgets around the world are becoming tighter. "India's frugal but sophisticated manufacturing and engineering services sectors can help reduce costs. India can also be a base for export to third countries, especially because of India's growing defence partnerships in Asia and beyond," he said. He said this is a new era for the defence industry in India and it will be no longer enough to buy equipment and simply assemble them here. "We have been doing this in the past, without absorbing any technology or developing our own capabilities. In some areas, we are where we were three decades ago," he said. Speaking candidly, he said public sector needs to do much better than they are doing now. "We have to exploit their huge assets and a vast potential. At the same time, we have to make them accountable. We want to develop an industry that is dynamic. It should constantly stay at the cutting edge of the global industry," he said.
